Dear Colleagues,

In the recent years, Environmental Audit has rapidly evolved to address the increasing complexity and urgency of global environmental challenges. With new risks emerging from climate change, biodiversity loss, pollution and depletion of natural resources, auditing practices require continuous updates and advanced methodologies to remain effective and relevant. Thus, it is crucial that being the auditors, we equip with the necessary skills to effectively audit environmental issues.

I take pride in informing that being a Global Training Facility (GTF) for INTOSAI Working Group for Environment Audit (WGEA), we aim to develop high quality products in training and research to enrich Environment Audit through an inter-disciplinary approach enabled by valuable partnerships. This distinctive position has further been augmented by designating iCED as a Centre for Excellence on Audit of Blue Economy.

To enhance our contribution to the Environmental Auditing community, iCED actively engages with researchers, professionals and academicians for in-house research.

To augment these initiatives, we have entered into Memorandum of Understanding (MoUs) with prestigious institutions such as TERI, IIT-Kanpur and NIUA, New Delhi etc.

We have also strengthened our in-house research capacity and published several research papers on crucial topics such as ocean acidification, marine energy resources, sustainable fisheries and more. These research papers are available for review on our website, and I encourage you to explore them.

Further, in accordance with the Standard Operating Procedure for Environmental Audit issued by the SMU Wing of Headquarters Office, significant emphasis has been placed in supporting the field offices in every phase of audit, viz. risk analysis, selection of potential topic for audit, audit planning, execution and reporting etc. In the past, we have provided support in much appreciated performance audits, including those of the

In the above backdrop and in view of changing landscape of Environment Audit, iCED is pleased to offer its expertise and would be privileged to organise customized research assignments and academic collaborations to meet your specific requirements. Needless to say, that we value your contribution in Environmental Auditing. Please feel free to reach out to us with any specific requests or areas where our expertise can be of use for your ongoing or upcoming audits.

Warm regards

Yours Sincerely,
